Social justice in CALL

- Preponderance of micro-level issues in CALL literature (Gruba & Hinkelman, 2012)
- Little attention to issues of social justice in CALL (Ortega, 2017)
Project-based (language) learning defined

“a long-term (several weeks) activity that involves a variety of individual or cooperative tasks such as developing a research plan and questions, and implementing the plan through empirical or document research that includes collecting, analyzing, and reporting data orally and/or in writing” (Beckett, 2002, p. 54)

“an approach in which learners investigate a question, solve a problem, plan an event, or develop a product” (Weinstein, 2006, p. 161)

“a teaching method in which students gain knowledge and skills by working for an extended period of time to investigate and respond to an authentic, engaging and complex question, problem, or challenge” (BIE, n.d., http://www.bie.org/)

methodology
Research aims

● To explore the effectiveness of using technology-enhanced PBLL in a second-semester Spanish language class

● To raise awareness and promote social justice in the University community
Research questions

1. What are some considerations for teachers interested in incorporating technology-mediated PBLL projects with a focus on social justice in their beginning-level language courses?

2. What are students’ perceptions regarding the potential benefits and challenges of technology-mediated PBLL for promoting social justice?
Context

● Communicative curriculum, 150 min per week
● “Lab” component 50 min per week:
  ○ PBLL Social Justice Project
  ○ 10% of final grade
● Social justice month at SCSU
Data for PBLL project

results
RQ1: Suggestions & recommendations for teachers

● In beginner-level courses, tech-mediated PBLL is challenging but not impossible
  ○ Think about authentic multimodal texts
  ○ Memes: “rich” in content, accessible in language

● Scaffolding is critical for beginning-level PBLL
  ○ Macro- and meso-scaffolding: Modelling, template with examples, independent construction
  ○ Micro-scaffolding: one-on-one help in the lab, more challenging to stay in the TL
R2: Student perceptions of benefits (content-focus)

“It benefited me and my classmates by further spreading awareness.”

“I think it helped spread ideas of social justice and with Spanish listeners.”

“Helped me to learn new things.”

“I liked that it focused on Social Justice, which is a major issue in this generation.”

“I liked the project as a whole. It gave us time to find some humor in Spanish.”

“This project allowed us to combine our new Spanish skills with our creativity which made the project more fun.”

“I enjoyed the meme project because it was something that the school does as a whole.”
R2: Student perceptions of benefits (form-focus)

“Helped me learn Spanish.”

“It was helpful in showing how certain phrases are totally different in Spanish.”

“It taught me new words/phrases.”

“I was able to pick up a couple extra words en espanol.”
R2: Student perceptions of drawbacks (content-focus)

“I disliked that it was presented in the way that it was, I felt it was under appreciated.”

“Not many people showed up to the presentation.”

“... talking with my peers in class was problematic because a lot of them loved to cheat from me.”
“Challenge: getting the right translation for the meme.”

“Impact on Spanish Language Learning: It didn’t.”

“Challenges included coming up with statements powerful enough to make a difference.”
limitations, future directions & conclusion
Limitations & future directions

- Limited data sources:
  - Interview the students
- Small-scale project:
  - Expand to multiple sections and across the semester
- Limited time resources within the general Spanish 101 curriculum:
  - Devote more time & opportunities for teachers’ PD in PBLL & SJ
- More of a PBL rather than PBLL experience
  - Change the “form-focus” to be more inductive rather than pre-planned (deductive)
- Amorphous (i.e., university community at large) non-Spanish-specific target audience:
  - Include Spanish-speaking local community as target audience
Conclusion

- Provide scaffolding when implementing PBLL (especially in beginning-level language courses):
  - “Joint construction” of memes (do one together as a class)
- Utilize the Product Square to plan the PBLL experience
  - Focus on Community Partners & Target Audience
- Advantage of using social justice for content-based instruction (PBL)
  - Don’t forget the second “L” by including many opportunities to focus on language (FonF)
Thank you! ¡Gracias!
